Feed your Curiosity When Brain Candy Live Comes to The Hanover Theatre in 2017

Worcester, Mass. (October 25, 2016) The Hanover Theatre for the Performing Arts is thrilled to announce the new live show Brain Candy Live!, starring Adam Savage, editor-in-chief of Tested.com and former co-host of the Emmy-nominated Discover series “MythBusters,” and Michael Stevens, creator of award-winning YouTube Channel “Vsauce,” debut at The Hanover Theatre for one night only on Saturday, February 25, 2017 at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale to members now. Tickets go on sale to the public on Friday, October 28 at 10 a.m.

Brain Candy Live! is an outrageous evening of entertainment from two of the most amazing minds of our times. Adam Savage, one of television’s most loved personalities, has joined forces with Michael Stevens, one of YouTube’s biggest stars. Together, the two are bringing along more than 3 tons of their crazy toys, incredible tools and mind-blowing demonstrations for a celebration of curiosity that’s been described as a cross between TED Talks and the Blue Man Group.

Savage and Stevens can’t wait to unleash their collective sense of wonder, curiosity and fun for audiences to join in and get their minds messy. Adam and Michael’s Brain Candy Live! experience is like a two-hour play date with Walt Disney, Willy Wonka and Albert Einstein.

Ask yourself... Is it possible to 3D print a human live onstage? Can you slow down the effects of gravity with something we throw away every day? What happens if everyone on earth jumps in the air at exactly the same time? Discover all this and more as Adam and Michael entertainingly answer questions, question answers and talk Mother Nature into doing some things she’s never done before.

Tickets to Brain Candy Live! start at $45. Discounts are available to members of The Hanover Theatre and groups of 10 or more. Tickets are available online at TheHanoverTheatre.org, by phone at 877.571.SHOW (7469) or at The Hanover Theatre box office located at 2 Southbridge Street in downtown Worcester.

About Adam Savage

One of the most highly regarded and watched series on Discovery Channel, "MythBusters" ran for 14 earth-shattering years. Co-hosted by Savage, the show mixed scientific method with gleeful curiosity and plain old-fashioned ingenuity to confirm or bust myths, creating its own signature style of explosive experimentation. Today, in addition to creating content for his website Tested.com, Adam has become a proponent for making, working with the White House to encourage kids and adults alike to get their hands dirty. He's also a regular at conventions across the country, where his elaborate and handmade costumes (such as Totoro at New York Comic Con) attract much attention ... and hugs.

About Michael Stevens

Michael's passion for learning, science and making curiosity contagious led him to create Vsauce in 2010. The YouTube channel captures attention with fun questions like, "What Color is A Mirror?" "Can You Count Past Infinity?" and "Why Are Things Creepy?" Now reaching a collective 17 million subscribers with video views in excess of 2 billion, Vsauce has grown into one of the largest educational networks on the web. Last year, it received the Webby for Best Science and Education Network.
